AN IDOL SHATTERED.

year ago, was profuse in his laudation figure in American politics since Linor sectional obligations"-those purposes, of course, being the destruction of protection and the enforcement of civil service and fiscal reform-the review is keyed throughout to a tone of regret, sadness and disappointment truly lamentable and pathetic. Its notes are not too full, round notes of preise, but rather the modiled chromatics of pain, grief and worr and it is with the heaviness that comes from hearing a dirge, and not the sostacy that dispires the listener to a pacen, that we arise from the perusal. Our magwamp cettle is not yet prepared to cast his ilolovarboard entirely. He still pretends to believe, for decemen's sake, in exemps for the past blind worship, that "My Cleveland is place." An idol commonplace: Perist, then, the idol! But, of course, the reproclasm cannot be affected in a broad. This Taibund as to the desirability of versal fact that the nir tired ateed has first to keep up the old faith which an acceptance by the city of W. But against these credit entries the finally-awakened Independent raspectistic new constrained to make a series of debit counter entries that have in them something of the somber expression of tragely, something of the suffing sense of disappointment, chagrin and loss which comes to all men upon the destruction of an illusion, upon the disruption of an ideal. Thus, we are told that Mr. Cleveland "Jeals in firetually with individuals," he "has a strange way of picking up men quixotically," as witness Gresham, Hoke Smith and Olney; he "lacks imagination;" he "he a ploiding man" who "cannot see dramatic off cts," cannot "play the game of statemast when the time comes for him to move men on the hoard," "cannot measure the effect of individualities on public opinion." AMONG Our Wheelmen

That this will be the banner cycling year in the city of Scranton is evidenced by the large sides that the dealers are already making. The season is great party in the opposition. > > One of the speedlest riders in this section is George Gardner, an employe of the Farmers' Dairy company, on sprace street. Last season witnessed Mr. Gardner's track initiation, but his work was of such good and promising quality that it was commented upon by the cycling journals. Mr. Gardner is a benedict, but spends a few hours each day at his tavorite aport. His many friends are desirons of seeing him race his season again, as his knowledge of competition sequired in last year's cir-mit meet will enable him to compute o better advantage with crack riders,

The dealers would undoubtelly furnish gratis a large number of prizes if sum one of the clubs would take the initial time. Decoration Day is universally recognized as the opaning day of the recognized as the opening day of the season for cycledom, and a road race from here to some of the outlying diafricts and return would introduce the season in an entiquiastic manner and reate a good-natured feeling of com petition between the riders of the various clubs. A more abused, ridiculed creature than the "road scoreber" cannot be found. He is guyed by his brother cheelmen, called a monkey on a stick y his paternal friends, j wrotat by the boy and forasken by his best girl and all because he will persist in amping over his machine as he drives it along the highway at the speed of an ordinary passenger train. The writer was walking along Washington avenue the other day when in the distance he spied one of the so-called "acorchers. He was coming down the avenua at a terrific gait every energy bent in his efforts to reach a 2 30 page. In his coping position he was an ungainly looking object but he seemed to drive his machine with great case and lodged smong the vehicles with an chility that showed that he was complete master of his steed. Wonderlag why he assume I such an ugly position ville riding as he came near, I took the liberty of hailing him to inquire his reasons for so doing. In an ewer to my query he said. 'Well, most people claim we do it to apthe racing man and excite attention. As a consequence we are unmercifully ridiculed. But there are reasons for all things and of course one for this climbing steep hills, the arms and handle bars play no unimportant part you were going to pall very strong on

Therefore it stands to factor. But THE TRIBUNE is free to reason that if you can bead slightly confess that Mr. Cameron's preceedure and grasp this brace you can get more chest and he lifts it with great exer tion because he cannot stoop over it Place the same weight at his feet and he will steep over and raise it with ease. This is why we stood and with-stand the ridicule of our friends."
"A very strong argument," I re-marked, but doesn't it injure the

"No, sir," he answered, "not at all, providing you stoop correctly. A large number of rilers double up the back thereby crowding the lungs with a small space and injuring them; but ust watch my position as I start away' at the hips with not the slightest semdance of a hump in his well formed shoulders and away he sped down the avenue happy in the knowledge that although he did not present a handsome appearance he could leave his more sedate brother in the rear.

The! Scranton Bicycling clab will hold its annual Memorial Day run from Port Jervis to Malford over the famous river road. Thirty riders have already made known their intention to crompany and the number will probably reach fifty, which will make a good showing for a ciub ran. The road from Port Jarvis to Milford is noted for its easy riding and amouthness and is a joy to all lovers of 'cycling. This season witnesses a decided reaction in bicycle eathusissm in this cinb and already the boys are making preparations for the season. Eight new mounts were delivered to members last week and this number will be increased as the good riding advances.

Riders who have ventured outside of he city report the roads in fair condi tion, very smooth, hard and free from dust. They speak especially of the boulevard and the road to Carbondale. ill Barnard made a nine minute run from Providence to Olyphant this week, which speaks well for the condition of the roads.

One of the novelties that the managers of the bley ding meet on July 4 are trying to have is a club race. This will, if decided upon, include all of the clube up and down the valley, each club entering a team of three men that will race for points, the team securing the largest number of points to be awarded the race. This should be done, if passible, because it will create a rivalry that will be beneficial to the near-by

Among the most needful and neat undries found on the market and which will be halled by touring wheel-men with delight is a new travelling log manufactured by the Gormully & effrey company. It is fitted between the diamond portion of the frame and is large enough to carry clothing suffiisnt for an entire change. It is made of tusset leather and presents a handsome appearance, and does not interfere with the free action of the riter.
